Easter Egg Hunt for Elementary Schoolers

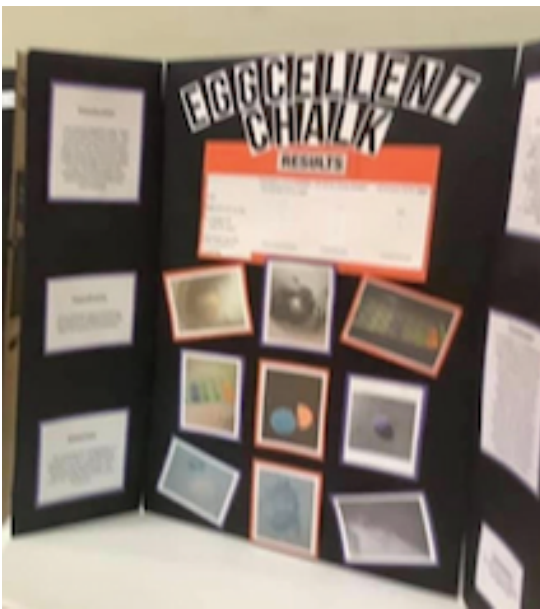

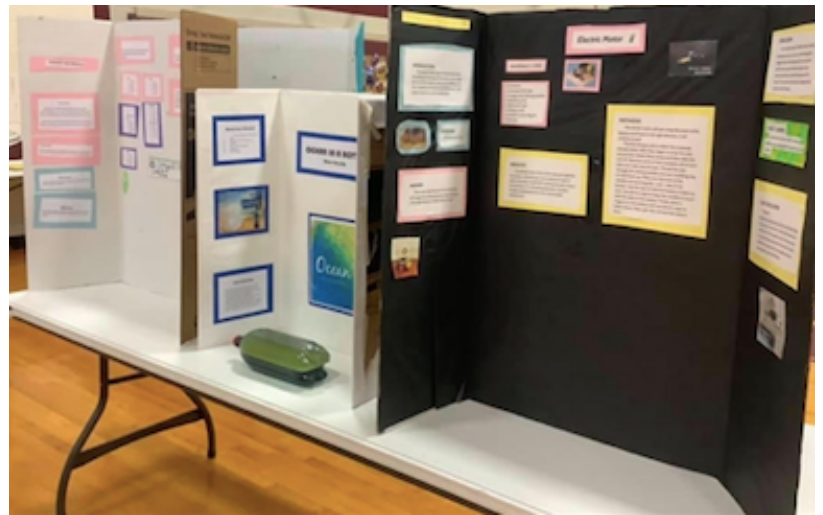

Spring is in the air. Spring brings feelings of warmth and excitement for school to finally be over. Temperatures go from frigid to comforting. The sun stays longer and everything starts to bloom again. Spring is associated with many things in differing cultures. In India, Spring is celebrated with Holi, a festival of colors. Many years ago in Europe, Spring was originally called Lent, the time when plants begin to spring from the ground. In China, Spring marks the beginning of the New Year in Lunar calendars.

APRIL FOOLS' DAY APRIL 1

April Fools' Day has been celebrated for many centuries by many different cultures, though its true origin remains a mystery. Some claim April Fools' is connected to spring equinox, while others claim it is based off of a Roman holiday called Hilaria. However, one thing has always remained the same. April Fools' Day is all about pranks. In honor of this holiday, here are some of the most legendary pranks.

*Taco Liberty Bell?

In 1996 Taco Bell announced that they had bought the Liberty Bell and were going to call it the Liberty Bell. Hundreds of outraged people called the National Historic Park in Philadelphia to complain. Hours later, Taco Bell apologized for it was just a harmless prank.

*Mermaids Exist?

Animal Planet, a usually pretty reliable source, released a two hour documentary claiming that they had found a body of a mermaid on the shores of Washington. Many were shocked and fooled, believing that mermaids truly exist, but Animal Planet admitted that this documentary was simply science fiction.
