Tiger Pause

Lewiston Patrons,

Welcome back to the 2021-2022 school year! I hope everyone had a wonderful summer! I can't believe how fast it went, but here we are....September!

We had a great turn out for Open House. 208 people visited the Kona Ice Truck. It was a great night to have that cool treat. We were so glad to see so many families participating in this fun evening.

The Prek-1st grade teachers are excited to share that we are implementing the Pyramid Model at those grade levels. I'll be including each month in the newsletter more information on this. There will also be helpful tips that can be implemented at home.

There are many activities that will be in full swing as we enter September. Make sure you keep the calendar in this newsletter and check the website for updates.

I would like to thank the American Lutheran Church in Filley for their donations of backpacks, school supplies, items for the Comfort Closet, shoes, socks, and monetary donations. These items come in handy as we go through the year.

Also, the family of Karen Mezger (former HTRS Guidance Counselor) donated backpacks and school supplies. These were donated in memory of Mrs. Mezger. We would like to thank them for their donation.

Let's have a great year!

From the desk of,
Principal Juli Smith

We have something important to share with you!

Research¹ has shown that the skills your child needs to be successful in the future are social and emotional skills!

The more socially skilled children are, the more likely they are to succeed in school. Because this is so important for your child, we are using the Pyramid Model in our program.

What is the Pyramid Model?

The Pyramid Model is a framework for supporting the social and emotional development of our children. The goal of the Pyramid Model is to create an environment where every child feels good about coming to school. This is accomplished by designing classrooms that promote engagement in learning and by building positive relationships among children, families, and staff. In our use of the Pyramid Model, our classroom staff will work together to ensure that all children understand behavior expectations, receive instruction in social skills, and those who are struggling receive individual support.

The Pyramid Model illustrates that the foundation for helping children develop social and emotional skills is nurturing and responsive relationships and high quality environments. The middle of the Pyramid, teaching of social and emotional skills, is provided to all children with some children receiving additional teaching and support. The top of the Pyramid shows that a few children will need the foundation, the middle AND individualized intervention to address challenging behavior.

To use the Pyramid Model, our program established a leadership team that will provide ongoing support to our staff and families. Our leadership team looks forward to sharing some of the important work we are doing, including teaching program-wide expectations, partnering with families, training staff in teaching strategies, providing classroom coaching to help teachers implement, and using data for decision-making. Stay tuned for ongoing updates about the Pyramid Model in our program!

What is gained by using the Pyramid Model?

Backpack Connection Series

About this Series

The Backpack Connection Series was created by TACSEI to provide a way for teachers and parents/caregivers to work together to help young children develop social emotional skills and reduce challenging behavior. Teachers may choose to send a handout home in each child's backpack when a new strategy or skill is introduced to the class. Each Backpack Connection handout provides information that helps parents stay informed about what their child is learning at school and specific ideas on how to use the strategy or skill at home.

The Pyramid Model

The Pyramid Model is a framework that provides programs with guidance on how to promote social emotional competence in all children and design effective interventions that support young children who might have persistent challenging behavior. It also provides practices to ensure that children with social emotional delays receive intentional teaching. Programs that implement the Pyramid Model are eager to work together with families to meet every child's individualized learning and support needs. To learn more about the Pyramid Model, please visit ChallengingBehavior.org.

How to Help Your Child Have a Successful Morning

Brooke Brogle, Alyson Jiron & Jill Giacomini

Do you struggle with stressful mornings when you want to lay your head down and cry before 8:00 a.m.? Do you often leave the house in an angry, frantic rush? Mornings can be a particularly challenging time for parents. Getting your entire family up and out the door is no easy task! It is important to understand that your morning routine serves as the foundation for your family's entire day. You can create a morning routine that not only helps your day to begin more smoothly, but also teaches your child important skills that he needs to become more independent and confident. A morning routine can also reduce challenging behavior such as crying, whining and tantrums.

Try This at Home

- Use a visual schedule with items such as photos, clipart, or objects that shows your child the steps in his morning routine. This visual schedule can help him to understand the expectations of the morning routine. To learn more about how to create a visual schedule, go to challengingbehavior.org and search the site for "visual schedules" in the search box located in the upper right-hand corner of the screen.
- If your child has trouble waking up in the morning, it might be because he is not getting enough sleep at night. Set a consistent bedtime and stick with it. When a child's bedtime changes it can make it harder for him to wake up in the morning. For more information on bedtime routines, go to challengingbehavior.org and search the site for "bedtime routines" in the search box located in the upper right-hand corner of the screen.
- Plan ahead. Use your bedtime routine to plan for the next day together.
 1. Lay out the clothes your child will wear.
 2. Pack his backpack.
 3. Discuss the morning routine, show him pictures and talk about the day ahead.
- Give your child some power over his morning routine by offering reasonable choices. For example, "First, get dressed. Then, you get a choice! Would you like to have cereal or pancakes for breakfast?"
- Include bonding time in your morning routine. Time to read, bathe or snuggle will help your child feel loved and calm as he begins his tasks for the day.

- Encourage your child. When your child completes a task and follows the routine, provide positive and specific encouragement. For example, say "Wow! You got up and got dressed all by yourself! Now we will have a few extra minutes to play with trains. What a great way to start the day!"

Practice at School

Teachers use routines to provide a predictable structure to your child's day. When a child understands what she should be doing and what will come next, she feels less anxiety and more excited to participate. While the specific activities in the classroom might change, the routine does not. For example, while 10:00 may always be art time, the specific craft (painting, cutting, gluing) may vary from day to day. Children become eager to try new activities because they are confident and comfortable with the routine.

The Bottom Line

A morning routine is a daily opportunity for you to build and nurture a positive relationship with your child. When you follow a repetitive morning routine you allow your child to gain practice with important skills such as dressing, bathing and grooming and give him a feeling of confidence and success. A calm, loving morning routine at home sets the tone for the entire day for both you and your child.

FROM THE CORNER ROOM

September 2021

The cooler evenings and days getting dark earlier means that Fall is not far off. School is off to a good start. Classes in the “Corner Room” are settling into a somewhat normal routine. The days seem to go by fast. It must be because everyone is interested in learning and giving it their best.

The days begin with the Problem Based Learning (PBL) class. The students are coming up with individual projects that test their knowledge and require new skills. They are working on designing pillows for the kindergarteners and making some baby items.

The Textile class has three different skill levels. This means those that have sewn longer are being challenged with more difficult projects. It is so rewarding to see a student’s face light up when a new skill is learned. The two Embroidery students are ready to be taking orders and designing items. They completed a 4-week training course in the Melco Design. I feel more confident in their skills from this point on.

The 7th Grade class is working through careers that might be available to them. They completed a unit on Art and AV careers following a unit on Food Preparation. They considered the Foods unit too short. If there is time at the end of the 9-week course, we will be exploring more food items.

Seniors are using a layered curriculum approach in Senior Skills this year. They have choices of how to approach each unit. Units completed include a short Google App review, a Time Management unit, and a unit of writing essays explaining what success means. They are also completing rough drafts of the essays needed for the Lewiston Scholarships offered next spring.

Quick and Easy Foods class has six students learning the ins and out of quick food preparation. A variety of abilities in the kitchen makes this an interesting class every day. They have completed their basic kitchen skills and are beginning simple lunch food preparation.

The Foods class that follows Quick and Easy Foods has one student who can experiment with a variety of foods. This class is enjoyable because he is being challenged to try new foods and new methods of food preparation.

The final class of the day offers the students a wide range of FACS activities. They completed a food unit and a smattering of design challenges. They are hard workers and challenge me to prepare lessons to meet their new skills.
